

LITTLE GIRL DIES AFTER LONG SLEEP

EDNA BAIN OF KENOSHA, PASSES AWAY.

She Had Been Slumbering For Nearly Two Weeks And Appeared To Be In A Normal Condition—Watertown Woman Similarly Affected—Broadhead Nominations—State Specials.

Kenosha, Wis., March 27.—[Special]—Little Edna Bain, who had been asleep since Monday, March 5, has succumbed to her long slumber and passed away. All efforts to arouse her from the time she went to sleep until her death, proved unavailing. During all the time, nearly two weeks, her condition appeared perfectly normal.

Watertown, Wis., March 27.—A case surpassing in strangeness that of the pleasant prairie, Kenosha county, girl who could not be awakened, is that of Miss Rose Joda of this city, who has been asleep for the past eight weeks. A physician attending her says the condition is caused by pressure on the brain. She had recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia when stricken with this strange malady. For the past few weeks heroic measures have had to be taken to awaken her sufficiently to give her food.

Lately, however, the task of awakening her has been easier, but she still slumbers on. It is said that when awakened she can tell the day of the week, although she has no perceptible way of finding it out. While in her somnolent condition needles and pins can be forced through the flesh without the patient showing any discomfort.

A like case was handled by local physicians last year, when the patient slept almost continuously for six weeks, and when finally the malady left her, she thought she had but awakened from a night's rest.

WAIT FOR STATE'S WITNESS.

Attorneys Secure An Adjournment In Allen Murder Case.

Barron, Wis., March 26.—The examination of Edward C. Allen, charged with procuring the murder of George Bromley, near this city, Nov. 3, 1896, was begun before Municipal Judge C. C. Coe. The state has relied on Allen's waiving examination and had not procured the attendance of the principal witness. Thomas Boscow, now confined in the state's prison at Waupun for burglary. It is alleged that he has confessed he murdered Bromley but says the deed was done at the instance of the defendant.

Miss Pugh Is Married.

Lancaster, Wis., March 27.—Letters have been received by Lancaster classmates in the Wisconsin State university of Miss Genevieve Pugh of Mazomanie, announcing her recent marriage to Alfred Peats, a member of the firm of wealthy wall paper manufacturers of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Peats are now in Europe, where they will remain until next autumn.

THE TARIFF TALK IN CANADA

Opinion Is Expressed That the Dominion Duties Are Too High.

Ottawa, Ont., March 27.—In the house of commons Friday the address in reply to the speech from the throne was taken up. The address was moved by Mr. Russell, liberal of Halifax. Referring to the tariff, he said that for many years Canada had been suffering from a high protective tariff, which fostered all kinds of trusts and combines. The United States, Mr. Russell said, framed its tariff to suit its own purposes, and Canada would do the same, not necessarily in a spirit of retaliation, but with a view of doing what was best for the dominion.

Sir Charles Tupper, conservative, declared that at no time were the people of Canada more in favor of the national or high protective policy than now.

George Foster, conservative, declared the cry of the people in Nova Scotia was wholly for a tariff on anthracite coal imported from the United States in retaliation for the proposed American duty on bituminous coal from Canada.

CALL ALL GOOD CITIZENS

Summoned to Attend a National Convention at Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., March 27.—Rev. R. W. Binkley, chairman, and S. Nicholson, secretary of the provisional executive committee, have issued a call for a national good citizens' convention, to be held in Nashville, Tenn., May 18, addressed to "all lovers of liberty, prosperity, truth, righteousness and good government," desiring to unite and work for good government, good times and the uplifting of humanity and to form a good citizens' league.

The call is signed by citizens from at least twenty-four states, including the names of Neal Dow, Maine; Josiah Strong, D. D., New York; Bishop W. X. Ninde, Detroit; George C. Lorimer, Boston; Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., Brooklyn; Kerr Boyce Tupper, Philadelphia, and over a hundred others.

AN EXPLOSION KILLS THREE

Employees of Dupont Chemical Company Meet Instant Death.

Philadelphia, March 27.—A terrific explosion occurred this afternoon at the works of the Dupont Chemical company, located on the banks of the Delaware river at Gibbstown, N. J. Three men were blown to atoms. The dead are:

JAMES HENDERSON, Paulsboro, N. J.

CARL WRIGHT, Paulsboro, N. J.

THOMAS STILES, Asbury Park, N. J.

The explosion occurred in the separating building, and that structure, with four other buildings surrounding it, were blown to splinters. The shock of the explosion was plainly felt at points 25 miles away.

HE KILLS FATHER AND SON

Family Quarrels Near Mount Gilead, Ky., Lead to a Double Murder.

Maysville, Ky., March 27.—Near Mount Gilead, in this county, Friday, Amos Riggs shot and killed young Boyd and his father, W. R. Boyd. A few days ago young Boyd ran off with one of Riggs' daughters and married her at Flemingsburg. This, together with some family quarrels, led Riggs to tell the Boyds that if they ever crossed his premises he would kill them. It is reported that Riggs hid in a fence corner with a shotgun and killed them as they rode by. Riggs was seen at the Maysville depot early in the morning before the shooting was known.

Hawaii Will Ask for Annexation.

Washington, March 27.—It is said to be probable that formal application for annexation to the United States probably will be made soon by the government of Hawaii through its minister to the United States. The application will be presented to the state department, and it is expected will be transmitted to congress. Ex-Minister Thurston, Attorney-General Smith, and Gen. Hartwell of Hawaii have been here since inauguration in the interest of annexation. Mr. Hatch, the Hawaiian minister, and Mr. Smith saw the president Thursday in favor of the project.

Think Store Bill Is Dead.

Springfield, Ill., March 27.—To all appearances the anti-department store bill is dead. There is little hope of its passage through the house. President Gillmann and the other remaining members of the Chicago Business Men's Association who came to Springfield last Tuesday to lobby for the passage of the measure left Friday, saying that they would not return. President Gillmann said the welfare of the measure might be entrusted to members of the house, but it was evident that he and his associates were disappointed.

Miles of Floods in Missouri.

Bird's Point, Mo., March 27.—The situation is serious at this point. Not a foot of dry land can be seen for miles, and there is little prospect of an abatement of the flood that now engulfs the little city in the near future. Many of the inhabitants are in boat houses, while others are living in box cars furnished by the Cotton Belt railway, and located at East Prairie, Mo.

FLEE TO THE HILLS TO ESCAPE WATER

FLOODS SPREAD RAPIDLY AT QUINCY, ILL.

The Mississippi River Is Already Seven Miles Wide at That Point and Still Rising—Residents of Low Lands at St. Paul Are in Danger of Drowning.

Quincy, Ill., March 27.—The flood situation here is becoming alarming, and the course of the Mississippi river in the next few days will be watched with the greatest anxiety. The river is fourteen feet above the low-water mark and is still coming up. The bottoms are submerged almost to the bluffs, and the river is now seven miles wide.

Most of the people have fled to the hills for safety, but those who have stuck to their homes are living in the upper stories, and boats have been substituted for wagons.

In the levee districts the people are living in a state of terror, and most of them have added boats to their farm equipments, so that they can get away if the flood comes upon them.

ALARM AT ST. PAUL.

River Now Is Perilously Close to the Danger Line.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—The river was nine feet two inches above low water mark Friday night, and the ice was beginning to break away from the shores. It is feared the danger line—ten feet—will soon be reached. It is also feared that a gorge will form at Lake Pepin. With the warm weather promised by the signal-service office the rise is expected to be rapid. The prediction is 10 degrees warmer. This will, it is thought by the officers in the signal bureau, liberate a large quantity of snow and ice and cause a very noticeable increase in the height of the Mississippi.

Many of the factories on the west side of the river are menaced. It is estimated that nearly 7,000 persons are living on the lowlands along the river bank, and a foot and a half more water in the river will flood the homes of nearly all of them.

Situation at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., March 27.—After remaining stationary for more than twenty-four hours, the river rose another inch Friday, and is still rising slowly. Ed Brady, a boy 13 years of age, fell from a skiff into the deep water and was drowned. Most of the coal mines at East Peoria have been compelled to shut down because of the muddy condition of the roads, it being impossible to haul coal to the city. Nearly 100 men are thrown out of work.

Has a Rise of Ten Inches.

Omaha, Neb., March 27.—The Missouri river rose ten inches Friday, with a probability of a further rise. Much of the low land on the Iowa side, above and below the city, is under water, though there is little damage being done, since the people have taken warning and removed from the section likely to be flooded. The smaller streams in the interior of the state continue to rise. The river at Omaha is running full of ice.

Six Feet Below the River.

Jackson, Miss., March 27.—A special from Greenville, Miss., says: Seven inches is the rise of the river during the last twenty-four hours. The town of Greenville is six feet below the level of the water. The levees, however, are standing the strain, and there is a very general feeling that the great delta is going to escape the threatened disaster.

Bridges Carried Away.

Valdosta, Ga., March 27.—The railroad bridge, across the Willacoochee river, at Ousley Station, twelve miles west of this place, was carried away by the flood. Traffic on the plant system west of this place is suspended. From one-half to two-thirds of the bridges in the county will have to be rebuilt at a heavy expense.

Steady Rise at Burlington.

Burlington, Iowa, March 27.—The river rose steadily all night and is now a fraction below ten feet above low water mark. One-half the sand ridge district is under water and the inhabitants have moved to higher ground. The country roads are impassable on account of mud.

Stagnation at Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., March 27.—General stagnation of retail business has been occasioned in central Illinois by the mud, which has blocked the country roads and rendered transportation by vehicles utterly impossible. Not a pound of grain has been marketed in thirty days.

Perola May Bid for Supreme Court.

Peoria, Ill., March 27.—While the senate sub-committee on appropriations was here Friday Senator Fitzpatrick of Chicago suggested to Mayor Allen that this city make a bid for the consolidated Supreme Court. The senator stated that it had been determined to consolidate the court and that Springfield did not want it to go to Ottawa, and Ottawa did not want it to go to Springfield.

TO AMEND THE BILL IS NOW THE PLAN

REAL CONTEST COMMENCED IN THE HOUSE.

Representative Dockery of Missouri, Seeks to Refuse Tariff Protection to Illegal Trusts—Proposal Made Is Ruled Out of Order—Further Debate On the Treaty.

Washington, March 27.—The tariff bill was thrown open for amendment under the five-minute rule in the house Friday, but seven weary hours of work only served to dispose of nine of the 162 pages of the bill. The discussion covered a wide range of political topics and at times was both interesting and exciting. By far the most important feature of the day was the attempt of Mr. Dockery (Mo.), Mr. Cooper (Tex.), and others, backed by the entire opposition, to secure a vote on an amendment, offered in a multitude of forms, which provided that in case any article, made dutiable by the bill, was controlled by a trust or combination the duty upon such article should be suspended.

Mr. Dingley made the point of order that the amendment was not germane to the dutiable list and would not be in order until the free list was reached. For almost three hours this point of order was fought over and made the subject of criminations and recriminations. The chair sustained the point of order. An appeal was taken, but the chair was sustained by a strict party vote—158 to 104.

The Democrats offered various amendments as the reading of the bill proceeded, but were all rejected. Committee amendments offered, however, were in each instance agreed to. The duty on carbonate of ammonia was increased from 1 1/4 cents to 1 1/2 cents a pound. The duty on crude tartar, wine, lees, etc., testing less than 40 per cent of bitartrate of potash, was fixed at 1 cent; over 40 per cent, 1 1/2 cents. The rate on rochelle salts containing 90 per cent of bitartrate was fixed at 5 cents a pound.

Mr. McMillin criticised the increased rate on celluloid articles, saying that if the purpose was to decrease importation that meant decreased revenue.

"The purpose of this bill is not in every instance to increase the revenue," said Mr. Russell (rep., Conn.); "sometimes it is to keep American laborers at work."

Frequently the discussion drifted into political questions. Appropriations, the money question and general party policies furnished topics for ample arguments. The paragraph relating to sulphuric and nitrous ether was amended so as to make the rate from 25 to 40 cents, as provided by the present law.

Mr. Bromwell (rep., O.) and Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.) got into a controversy over the protection accorded in the bill to soap. It was listened to with considerable interest, and when it closed Mr. Clark (Mo.) made it the text for a characteristic speech.

In reply to a taunt that the democrats were seeking delay, Mr. Dockery said that no such tactics were being pursued on his side. "On the contrary," said he, "we are very anxious to reach some of the schedules of this bill before the final vote is taken. We understand that there is an incipient revolt over there among some of the republican members from the prairie states who want lumber left on the free list."

When the item of white lead was reached Mr. Mahany (rep., N. Y.) moved to increase the rate from 2 1/2 to 3 cents per pound. After some debate, in which the lead trust figured extensively, the amendment was adopted—93 to 55.

FURTHER DEBATE ON TREATY.

Senators Seem Inclined to Make Further Important Amendments.

Washington, March 27.—The debate on the Anglo-American arbitration treaty was continued by the senate in executive session Friday. Senator Gray, a member of the committee on foreign relations, defended the treaty as one which would reflect credit upon its authors and upon the two nations which it was intended to bind together even more closely than they are at present bound.

Senator Thurston said there should be a declaration so explicit on the character of disputes to be settled under the treaty as to leave no room for misunderstanding on this point in the future.

The afternoon developed quite a pronounced tendency in the direction of an amendment similar to the first amendment originally reported by the foreign relations committee, excepting all questions of policy, and it was suggested by some that there should be a return to the original position of Lord Salisbury favorable to the arbitration of only pecuniary claims, leaving out all question of policy and of territorial rights.

Ridicules Civil Service.

Washington, March 27.—Another brief discussion of the civil service occurred during the open session of the senate Friday. Mr. Gallinger (rep., Neb.), presented several forms issued by the civil-service commission to substantiate his recent statement that certain applicants for office were required to hop on one foot for twelve feet. Referring to the size and weight requirement, Mr. Gallinger said: "Phil Sheridan could not have served the government if the civil-service commission had got at him." The matter was referred to the civil-service committee. Resolution was adopted asking the president for information as to the death of two American sailors at Santiago de Cuba; also resolutions asking the attorney-general for information of any proposition to sell the Union Pacific railroad.

GERMANY HAS WITHDRAWN

Concert of the European Powers Is Badly Broken.

Constantinople, March 27.—It is asserted here on what is regarded as reliable authority that in consequence of the refusal of Lord Salisbury to join in a blockade of Greek ports Germany has given notice to the powers of her intention to withdraw from the concert.

It is understood that Turkey sent her squadron through the Dardanelles on the advice of Germany.

London, March 27.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Vienna says the Austrian foreign office has proposed to extend the blockade along the entire Greek coast, with special stringency at the Piraeus and the gulfs of Volo, Corinth and Arta. Great Britain, having abandoned the condition that Turkey and Greece must be asked to withdraw their troops from the Thessalian frontier before the blockade is extended to the gulf of Volo, will be content, it is assumed by the Austrian foreign office, if the admirals so arrange the blockade as to spare the susceptibilities of certain powers.

A dispatch to the Daily News from Rome says that the powers have directed not to consult Greece on the details of autonomy for Crete. Instructions have been sent to the admirals giving them full power to extend the blockade to Greek ports if they deem it necessary.

A dispatch to the Times from Canaan says there is no doubt that the Christians have attacked the Turks, because driven to desperation by the blockade. A similar protest against European partiality for the Turks is probable along the whole insurgent line. Throughout the island the Mohammedans think they may do what they like now, because they have European backing. In all directions they are pillaging and burning the property of Christians.

DIRECT THE SILVER FIGHT

Completion of the Committee of the National Democratic Clubs.

Washington, March 27.—President Chauncey E. Black has announced the completion of the executive committee of the National Association of Democratic clubs, which will serve until the convention of Democratic clubs in 1899, as follows: Benton McMillin, Tennessee; Stephen M. White, California; George H. Lambert, New Jersey; Edward Murphy, Jr., New York; E. Chambers Smith, North Carolina; Lloyd L. Jackson, Maryland; C. C. Richards, Utah; John L. Mitchell, Wisconsin; John R. McLean, Ohio; Charles J. Faulkner, West Virginia; E. B. Howell, Georgia; William J. Stone, Missouri; H. D. Money, Mississippi; George Fred Williams, Massachusetts; James C. Dahman, Nebraska; J. S. Hogg, Texas; J. C. Sibley, Pennsylvania.

TO LICENSE PRIZE FIGHTS

State of Missouri Will Follow Nevada's Lead.

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—Confidently expecting that Gov. Stephens will sign the horse breeders' bill, which incidentally permits the licensing of prize fights, the Olympic Athletic Club of St. Louis will be incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. Many St. Louis moneyed men are interested and if necessary required could incorporate for $1,000,000. The advisability of St. Louis as a central point, easily accessible from all sections of the country, and the further fact that Missouri will enjoy considerable of a monopoly in a pugilistic way should the breeders' bill be signed, are the considerations which led to the formation of the club.

Minnesota Wheelmen Secede.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 27.—The threatened secession in Minnesota from the League of American Wheelmen has come, the United Wheelmen of America having been formed at a meeting of 100 members of the United Wheelmen of Minneapolis and St. Paul in this city last night. There are 30,000 wheelmen in Minnesota, and of this number but 470 are members of the League of American Wheelmen. The new organization will endeavor to establish branches in other states.

Statistician Thompson Must Pay.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 27.—Gov. Mount spent Friday considering the report of the commission that has been investigating the affairs of the state bureau of statistics for several days, and late at night gave out his conclusions on the evidence submitted, ordering Mr. Thompson to pay into the treasury $1,144 for which he cannot account, and $1,250 which he claims to have drawn under a misapprehension of the law. The resignation of the accused is held in abeyance until May 1.

Making Cotton Goods for China.

Manchester, N. H., March 27.—The mills are making large quantities of cotton goods for the Chinese trade. Five hundred bales of goods were shipped to China this week, via Vancouver, B. C., and other orders will be filled as soon as possible.

THE TRADE REVIEW BY DUN & COMPANY

BUSINESS SURPRISES DURING THE LAST WEEK.

Adverse Influences Have Been At Work—Grain Markets Have Lost Some of the Recent Gain—Failures Show Decrease When Compared With Last Year.

New York, March 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"Rarely have markets sustained such surprises as they have received of late with so little loss. Foreign conditions and London alarms, the collapse of the iron-ore combination, the destructive floods in the Mississippi valley and the decision of the Supreme Court against railway associations have been used to the utmost, but not even in railroads has the result been important. With confidence that better times and larger business are coming, men are less disposed every day to throw away good investments, and the very fact that prices of products are low is regarded as a guaranty against much further decline. In all industries also the number of mills and shops and hands at work gradually increases.

"The grain markets have lost without reason the gain they made without reason the previous week. Wheat supplies are running out, but nobody believes that there is coming a famine before June, when the harvesting of southern wheat will begin. Western receipts were over a third smaller than last year, and for four weeks have been 7,611,000 bushels, against 11,334,208 bushels last year, but the better prospect for the crop of winter wheat has more weight. Cotton was helped up an eighth by the flood, but has lost half the gain, although manufacturing is more hopeful.

"Speculation in wool has recorded larger sales for four weeks than ever before, 46,605,300 pounds, against 21,934,676 in the same week of 1892. The wool market is steadily increasing, but cautiously, as it is too early to anticipate results from changes which may be made in duties.

"Failures for the week have been 291 in the United States, against 259 last year, and 50 in Canada, against 39 last year."

Retain Democrats in Office.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 27.—R. O. Johnson, superintendent of the institution for the education of deaf-mutes; W. H. Glasscock, superintendent of the institution for the education of the blind, and Dr. George Edenharter, superintendent of the central insane hospital, were re-elected by the new boards of control for these institutions. The superintendents are all Democrats, and their re-election by Republican boards is in accordance with the policy of Governor Mount not to make changes where incumbents are efficient officers.

Chicago Mystery Unsolved.

Chicago, March 27.—The Dunning authorities were unable yesterday to shed any light on the identity of the headless body found in the catch basin near the poorhouse. It was developed that the man probably was an inmate of the place of paupers. Portions of his clothing were dragged from the sewer. The texture of the cloth was found to be of a cheap quality. It is reasonably certain the man was not decapitated before he was placed in the basin. The missing hand was brought to the surface. It is thought a further search may result in finding the head. The man probably was murdered, by whom is a mystery.

Bolt from Hunter Likely to Grow.

Frankfort, Ky., March 27.—The election of Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter, the Republican caucus nominee for senator, daily grows more improbable. Three more members of his own party openly announce that they will join the six Republican bolters Monday. It begins to look as if the extra session will result as did the regular one—develop into an unbreakable deadlock.

Kansas Banks in Good Condition.

Topeka, Kan., March 27.—One hundred and twenty-five Kansas banks which have responded to the call of Commissioner Briedenthal show an average reserve of 46 per cent. This is 8 per cent higher than the showing made by any previous report. The requirement of law is 25 per cent. Only three of the 125 have reserves lower than is required by the statute.

Income Tax Resolutions.

Washington, March 27.—Representative Griggs of Georgia has introduced a resolution providing that measures be taken to have the constitution so amended as to give congress the power to impose and collect an income tax without regard to the proposition to the census or enumeration provided for in the constitution.

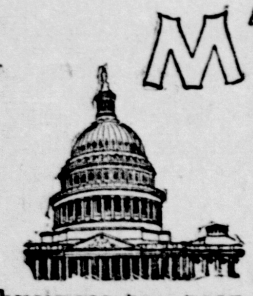

Russian Statesmen Angry.

St. Petersburg, March 27.—In the most important quarters here much annoyance is felt at the signs of the vacillating policy shown by the powers at a moment when the greatest firmness is necessary. The feeling here is that the other powers are trying to place Russia in the undesirable position of shedding Christian blood.

THE WEEK'S WORK AT THE CAPITAL

WHAT THE LAW MAKERS ACCOMPLISHED.

Date of the Final Adjournment Is Not Yet In Sight, As the Resolution Setting April 14, As the Date Is Still Hung Up—Madison Gossip.

MADISON, Wisconsin, March 27.—This week has been a busy one with the legislature. Over 200 bills have been acted upon one way or another in the two houses and business has been booming every day. Since Monday there have appeared in the two houses and been acted upon the bill which if passed will change the Wisconsin libel law; the pharmacy bill; the bicycle baggage bill; and the street railway compromise in regard to the taxation of those corporations. All these bills have gone by one house with the exception of the bicycle baggage bill, which yesterday met death in the senate. Of the measures the most important is undoubtedly the street railway bill, which increases the tax 50 per cent, or 1 1/2 per cent of gross earnings. At this stage in the session there is not likely to be any change made in the bill and it will probably pass the assembly in its present form.

Other measures which have come back from committees this week are the Hall anti-pass amendment with its accompanying substitute from the assembly judiciary committee which does away with the passes but increases the salaries of the legislators to $1,000 per regular session and the minority report of that committee which recommends the passage of the resolution in its original form. So far these reports have failed of action, but they will undoubtedly come up Monday night when it is likely they will be laid over again until Tuesday morning, as Mr. Hall is anxious of as many legislators as possible being placed on record when action is taken on the resolution.

Another important bill which is a long way toward passage is the Overbeck bill repealing the present tonnage tax or vessels which came before the senate this week with a recommendation for passage which has been delayed by a re-reference. Other bills of importance which have been transferred from one house to the other this week are the measures prohibiting the sale of liquor on section 35, Town of Wauwatosa, Milwaukee county, near the Soldiers' home, and the medical bill. The former measure is intended to wipe out the saloons at the gate of the Soldiers Home in Milwaukee county while the purport medical bill is too well known to need discussion. The Soldiers' bill is going to meet with a serious opposition in the senate as it will be fought there by Senator Roehr, who is opposed to the measure.

Final adjournment is not yet in sight. The senate passed a resolution fixing the date for the legislative leave-taking on April 14. This measure was non-concurred in by the assembly, however, and now stands tied between the two houses. The senate measure was in a way not an adjournment resolution but simply provided for a recess until August 10, when the legislature will have to resemble for the purpose of revising the statutes. Since the non-concurrence some of the senators have been rather bitter in their criticism of the action of the assembly and have declared that it was based on a desire from the latter house to make the adjournment, a final one, and thus permit the members of the legislature upon re-assembling, to draw mileage for their attendance upon the extra session. The assemblymen, however, discredit any theory of this character, and say they simply desire by the measure to not fix any final date for the recess, so that there may be ample opportunity given for taking good care of all legislative measures before the members leave Madison. In this they have the strong side of the case, as there are a great many important bills, including the insurance and banking measures and the Hall anti-pass amendment, which will have to be given careful attention before the legislative recess.

Another legislative fight which may be expected any day, is over the anti-cigarette measure. The bill for the suppression of this alleged evil among the youth of Wisconsin came back in the assembly yesterday morning with a recommendation of a majority of the committee on public health and sanitation, that the bill be killed. Dr. Olson and Assemblyman McGrath, however, dissented from the report, and practically give assent to the bill by placing before the assembly a very similar measure which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors, and also provides for the licensing of stores where cigarettes are kept. In this bill they believe a key has been found or the solution of the evil, and they are going to make a hard fight to secure the passage of the substitute bill. How the matter will end this week will decide, but it would seem to be a pity if this anti-cigarette measure which has been presented to the legislature by the women of the W. O. T. U. of Wisconsin, should prove a useless article.

Wheelmen throughout the state will undoubtedly be greatly incensed over the defeat in the senate of the senate of the bicycle baggage bill. This measure has been supported by innumerable petitions which have flooded the chief clerks' desks in both houses every day since the session began. The Austin compromise on this measure which only required the checking of one bicycle with each full fair ticket was seemingly not an unfair one as it would have prevented the checking of more than one bicycle on any single ticket. Under the original bill which made bicycle baggage, four or five machines could have been checked with each ticket, as the average bicycle nowadays weighs only 22 to 30 pounds, while each person is permitted to carry with him by law 150 pounds of baggage.

According to present returns, the assembly is preparing to give a way up concert, April 1. At its meeting yesterday George Taylor was added to the committee on arrangements and this means that every effort possible will be put forth to make the affair Thursday night a success. A purse of $50 will probably be raised by the assemblymen for the expenses of the event. The senate concert so far this season have been very fine entertainments and he assembly intends that its one musical shall equal any that has already been given by the senate.

The adjournment yesterday took almost everybody home about as soon as the train would bear them yesterday afternoon the assembly and senate halls were deserted. Next week it is possible both houses will attempt to hold Saturday sessions for the reason that the adjournment will have to be over Tuesday as that day will be election day.

Monday night occurs the final hearing on the anti-pool selling bill and it is a question if even then the opposition to this bill will oppose the measure. The fight on this bill has been from the first a secret one and not until the final roll call is held on the bill will the assembly be able to discover who its real enemies are.

STORM STOPS HUNT FOR LEAF CROP

BLIZZARD MAKES THE ROADS IMPASSABLE.

Local Dealers Are Now Trading Among

Themselves—Several Large Transactions Are Reported—Packing Still Continues—The Situation At Edgerton—Some Warehouses Close Down

A regular old time equinoctial storm, heavy rains and a few dashes of snow, have put the roads in an almost impassable condition and has precluded riding to any great extent, so the tobacco buyers are trading among themselves, The Leaf says. Some riding is being done, however, and a few crops picked up here and there.

Among the large transactions reported are 479 cases of '94 sold by Soverhill & Porter; 306 cases sold by A. N. Jones to a cigar manufacturer; 159 cases sold by Geo. H. Runnill; 60 cases old bought 13 000 pounds of '96 bought by A. L. Fisher; 30 cases sold and one car of '96 bought by Robt. Erler; several crops were bought by S. B. Haddles; 28 cases sold by Radolph, Haviland & Son; 200 cases bought by F. S. Baines, of Andrew Jensen, of Edgerton, and several small lots sold by Joseph Grundy.

The very muddy roads have interfered somewhat with deliveries by farmers but most of the packers have plenty of bundle goods to work on as yet. There are several large transactions in the process of consummation.

The Edgerton Market.

Business has commenced to contract very materially in the tobacco markets of the state, says The Edgerton Reporter. Tobacco of every description is now pretty thoroughly out of the hands of the growers. Occasional strays are to be found but even these are located and some buyers have them in view. Before another crop is planted the growing sections promise to be as bare of cured leaf as at any time in the past twenty years. The rush after "shorts" seems to have subsided somewhat, though the holders of these goods are maintaining stiff prices. What there is of the new crop moving is mostly of neglected lots or in damaged districts.

Sales of new leaf reaching us are: L. L. Grinde, 7 acres '96 at 6 1/2 bundle. Nels Knutrig, 5 acres '96 at 4 1/2 bundle. J. Hermanson, 8 acres '96 at 5 bundle. O. J. Harvey, 10 acres '96 at 6, 2 and 1 1/2 bundle. G. Madison, 6 acres '96 at 5 1/2 bundle. Ed. Larson, 6 acres '96 at 4 1/2 bundle. Peter Pedge, 3 acres '96 at 5 bundle. James Brennan, 3 acres '96 at 5 1/2 bundle. John Carr, 3 acres '96 at 5 and 1 1/2 bundle. H. E. Miller, 3 acres '96 at 4 1/2 bundle. Old Stock Sold.

Transactions in old stock coming to our notice are:

Henry Gilman, 40 cases '94 at 90. Patterson, 20 cases '94 at 90. T. Tolson, 45 cases '94 at 90. Hans Vieman, 30 cases '95 at 80. George Goff, 31 cases '95 at 70. Hans Terry, 11 cases '95 at 70. Green & Co., 15 cases '95 at 5 1/2.

H. W. Child has purchased a 200-case lot of '93 from J. M. Dodge of Albany. C. C. Olson reports the sale of 430 cases of '94 and '95 during the week. A. S. Fagg has purchased about 100 cases from local dealers.

A few more of the warehouses have finished their work for the season and closed down. Others have bundled leaf in sight for several weeks yet.

The shipments from this station reach a total of 800 cases or sixteen cars for the week to all points. Eleven car load of new goods lay on track here on Tuesday consigned to local dealers from outside points. Nearly 4 000 cases of cigar leaf were exported from New York since our last report.

THAT CAMBRIDGE RAILWAY.

Villagers Think That The Line Will Be In Operation Soon.

There a great number of inquiries as to how the Cambridge railroad is progressing, and some are getting discouraged because nothing has been done to the track lately. There is some delay in coming to an understanding with the owners of the road in respect to village aid. The record of the citizens of the village is one of which any community might well feel proud. They have contributed a large sum of money and any amount of time and energy for a railroad, and there is not even a suspicion but what every dollar given and all work done by them has been honestly used for the good of the village without any hope of selfish gain. And they are sure that it has been wisely expended, and are determined that it shall be so to the end, and that this honorable record shall not be broken. They have today a railroad graded and ironed that has cost over $25,000 which stands clear of all encumbrances, in the possession of men of capital and ability, and of excellent reputation and character, who are deeply interested in making it a success. The probabilities all are that the road will be extended as planned, and made a part of a great railway system. But in any event people are as determined as ever to have the railroad in successful operation to Cambridge soon, and are ready to vote village aid and help in every possible way. All they demand, and this they are bound to have, is that the company which is to complete and operate the railroad shall be bound to give good service for a sufficient time to make it an assured success.

A Glimpse of Emerson.
Emerson might be seen on his way to the postoffice at precisely 5:30 every afternoon, after the crowd there had dispersed. His step was deliberate and dignified and though his tall, lean figure was not a symmetrical one, nor were his movements graceful, yet there was something very pleasant in the aspect of him even at a distance. The same has also been said of good statuary, even before we know what is its subject. He knew all the people, old and young, in the village and had a kindly word or a smile for every one of them. His smile was better than anything he said. There is no word in the language that describes it. It was neither sweet nor saintly but more like what a German poet called the mild radiance of a hidden sun. No picture, photograph or bust of Emerson has ever done him justice for this reason; only such a master as Giorgione could have painted his portrait.—F. P. Stearns' Sketches of Concord.

Piano in Darkest Africa.
"An African tribe has an instrument something like our piano. It has a keyboard and when the keys are pressed down and released they cause thin pieces of wood to vibrate and give forth sounds. The xylophone exists in entirety in some parts of Africa, hollow gourds placed under each strip of wood accentuating the sounds."

HE DESERVED TO BE HAUNTED

A Cruel Deed Committed in Spain Punished in Scotland.

A correspondent sends for publication the following story of "Pearlin Jean," taken from a letter written by Lady John Scott to the late Mr. James Gibson-Craig in 1868, says the Edinburgh Scotsman. Toward the end of the seventeenth century Sir James Stuart of Allanbank was traveling in Spain. While he was at Madrid he saw and fell in love with a beautiful nun. He withdrew her secretly from her convent and promised her that she should go with him to Scotland as his wife and that he would never forsake her. She used to dress magnificently and from wearing a quantity of the old lace called "Pearlins," he called her his "Pearlin Jean." After a time he began to think he should have an awkward story to tell if he took her home and he made up his mind to get rid of her by leaving Madrid suddenly without her knowledge. (They did not inhabit the same house.) His carriage and horses stood ready at his door by day dawn and he was just getting in when "Pearlin Jean," who had for some reason suspected his treachery, rushed to him and entreated him to take her with him. He pushed her away without speaking and got into the carriage. In her frantic despair she threw herself on her knees in front of the horses to stop them. Sir James called out to "drive on." They did so. The horses trampled her under their feet; the wheels of the carriage went over her; but he, without even looking back upon her, proceeded on his journey. It was on a dark winter night that he drove up the avenue of Allanbank. His return had been sudden and, as he knew, quite unexpected by his servants. Therefore his surprise was great when on looking toward the house he saw that every window was illuminated. As his carriage stopped the great doors were thrown open and in a blaze of light "Pearlin Jean" stood at the top of the steps to receive him. From that time she haunted him. His life became a burden to him; he neither ate nor slept and he fell away day by day. In vain his friends tried to persuade him that his terrors were imaginary. He always replied: "She is there!" He had a picture taken of her in Madrid. Some of his friends thought they would try to cure him of his delusions by placing this picture on the wall opposite his bed and opening the curtain secretly as soon as he had lain down, hoping that if he declared again he had seen the ghost they might then show him the picture and laugh him out of his fears. Two of them hid themselves in his room and the moment his head was on the pillow they drew back the curtains at the foot of the bed. Sir James started up with terror in his countenance and exclaimed: "My God! There are two of them!" and instantly fell back in a fit. After this time no attempt was made to explain away her appearance and "Pearlin Jean" continued to haunt the house of Allanbank as long as it stood. It was bought and pulled down by Lady Houston (Miss Boswell of Blackadder) but whether "Pearlin Jean" still wanders about the site of the old house I don't know.

Up to a Pig.
Until what is the last few months no monuments had ever been erected to the memory of a pig. The town of Luneberg, Hanover, wished to fill up the blank and at the Hotel de Ville in that town there is to be seen a kind of mausoleum to the memory of the porcine race. In the interior of the commemorative structure is a costly glass case enclosing a ham still in good preservation. A slab of black marble attracts the eye of the visitor, who finds thereon the following inscription in Latin, engraved in letters of gold: "Passerby, contemplate here the mortal remains of the pig which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Luneberg."

Her Majesty Approves of Clubs.
Queen Victoria has bestowed her gracious countenance on women's clubs and they are increasing in numbers. The Green Park club is one of the best of these organizations in London, and is at the same time one of the most aristocratic. To this club the queen has sent her portrait, with her autograph. The Ladies' International club is one of the newest clubs in the English metropolis. Its home is in Bond street. Its avowed desire is to entertain friends from all parts of England and from foreign countries as well, particularly the United States. New York clubwomen have, therefore, a warm personal interest in the new London International.

What Was the Trouble?

Health Broken Down, Heart Troubles, Torpid Liver, Consumption, Rheumatism

Whatever It Was, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured by Its Power as The One True Blood Purifier.

Discouraged people are numerous now—some because of lost business, others because of lost health. All may find fresh inspiration and valuable suggestions in the following:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen: For 12 years I have been a commercial traveller, and owing to the hardships of my life, long railroad jumps, all kinds of exposure, and sudden changes of climate, etc., my health gave way. Physicians did not help me and I was given up to die. My illness developed a Complication of Diseases.

I was without ambition or appetite. All strength had left me. One doctor said I had heart disease, another torpid liver, a third said it was lung trouble and another consumption, and so on. I have no doubt, symptoms of all these complaints and even that of rheumatism, judging from the stiffness and pains in my joints and legs at times, were manifest. I was unable to attend to business, was confined to my room and frequently lay in a comatose state for hours. I was so feeble, and so little encouragement was offered, that I began to wonder

Where I Would be Buried.

Finally, as a last effort to help myself, I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The effects of a few doses of the medicine seemed almost magical. The depressed feeling left me, and when one bottle had been taken, I had regained an appetite, and strength was coming back. After finishing the third bottle I was able to go about my commercial duties. I continued to improve, and to satisfy my mind that I had fully regained health, I submitted myself to a doctor for examination. He pronounced me 'sound as a dollar.' Three months later, I passed a rigid examination for insurance. I have since been in the best of health, notwithstanding my travels, and I give Sarsaparilla, as each season since I have taken several bottles. It keeps my blood in good circulation, gives me a keen appetite and leaves no room for that tired feeling which naturally finds easy prey among those of my calling in the summer months after an early spring hustle. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla the means of saving my life, and I gladly speak in its favor." A. J. LEITCH, home address, Cass House, Saginaw, Michigan.

MRS. ISHAM OF 1658.

A Home-Made Lotion for Her Face—

She Suffered from an Eruption.

Mrs. Isham suffered from an eruption on the skin, says Longman's Magazine, for which Sir Ralph Verney sent her a home-made lotion, with the following directions (March 22, 1658): "Apply this to your face every night after you are in bed * * * let it lie on all night and wipe it gently off in the morning with a piece of store new black cloth, but wash not your face. If you see no company for a day or two, or three, it is better, for then you may lay it on fresh in the morning, and let it continue on all day, and wipe it gently off at night again with the black cloth. * * *

"I had almost forgot to tell you you must not lay it on clear but shake it very well together, till tis as thick as caudle, then power out a little quickly into this china box, and, lying on your back, take a piece of sponge, pat it upon your face thick and thin together. * * * If you like it you may have as much of it as you please at a Weekes Warning."

When it arrives she is too busy with her husband's ailments to attend to her own. * * * "If my dear Penny is well I shall soon make use of it. I do but think with my Blakface and the Blake cloth what a Blakemore I shall be." Blindness had, perchance, its compensation for her husband.

The question of servants constantly comes up. Sir Ralph asks whether they have a man to recommend. "I think in time Woods may make a good sarvishable servant," Mrs. Isham replies, "because he hath larned to barbe already, that must all our mense dooe, or ells it will coste Penny more in barbing then we give for wages in a year; and if he had never come hither you mite sooner a had him, for Pann uses to groe so fonde of all his mense as much adoeoe I have to make him to change, all through they be nevere such foolles as Dimocoe was. I inquired after my cason Will: Dormer's Butler for you, but he was gone into France. Such a one as he would a sarved anyone's torne, so nete a man; and with one coope of beare, as thay say, would a doone his master more credete than many a one with bottles of wine."

CAMBRIAN ETYMOLOGY.

Localities in the British Isles That Retain Celtic Names.

Many localities retain the names originally bestowed upon them by the Celtic Britons, those, for example, which have the prefix cum, which is the Welsh word, a valley, says the Gentlemen's Magazine. Anderson, the local poet, enumerates them:

There's Cumwhitton, Cumwhinon, Cumranton
Cumrangon, Cumrew and Cumcatch,
And many mair cums in the county,
But nin wi' Cumdiveock can match.
Some of the above names, it will be observed have the Anglo-Saxon "ton" superadded to them.

The familiar Celtic prefixes, pen, a hilltop and caer, a fortress, appear in Penrith and Penrudeock (which both signify "red hill"), Cardunock and Carlisle or Caer-Leol. Durnock may be the Gaelic dwr-noc, "water hill" or else a proper name. Leol is merely a contraction of Luguallium, the Roman name of Carlisle, and the Latinized form of some unpronounceable appellation by which the Britons designated the site of that city.

In Talkin we recognize the Celtic word, taken, a brow, and in Castle Carrook we may trace the Gaelic caragh (which means a large stone set on end) or the Welsh careg, a rock. The river names of the county, are for the most part of Celtic origin. Thus the Irthing, wandering over the alluvial plain, is believed to derive its name from the Welsh gwyddu, to write or turn, and the Gelt, dashing over its bed of red sandstone, from the Celtic gait, a rock.

Of mountain names Helvellyn, the yellow mountain; Rivelyn, the red mountain, and Blencathra, the seat mountain (the ancient name of Saddleback), are Celtic. The Gaelic word cathair and Welsh caer mean a chair and Blaen is a Welsh term for a hill-top, occurring in other local names, such as Blencow and Blennerhasset.

A Curious Wooden Watch.

The most curious timekeeper, perhaps, that has ever been made in this country was the work of one Victor Doriot, who lived at Bristol, Tenn., about twenty years ago. This oddity was nothing more or less than a wooden watch. The case was made of briar root and the inside works, except three of the main wheels and the springs (which were of metal) were made from a piece of an old boxwood rule. The face which was polished until it looked like a slab of finest ivory, was made from the shoulder blade of an old cow that had been killed by the cars. "Doriot's queer watch," as it was called, was an open-faced affair, with a glass crystal and was pronounced a fine piece of work by all the watchmakers in East Tennessee.

Who Was He?

In a university town in one of the southern states a reading club had been organized, each member of which was required to prepare a paper on some designated literary masterpiece. One member, an episcopal clergyman, was asked to take for his subject Sir Thomas Mallory's "Morte d'Arthur." Immediately after the meeting he sought the study of a literary friend. "What is this 'Morte d'Arthur' that they've given me?" he queried anxiously. "Of course I've always known that Mallory edits The Churchman but I never heard before that he'd written a book."—The Bookman.

THE CITY CAMPAIGN.

This question is presented to democrats and republicans alike this spring: Why vote for a half-and-half ticket when a ticket is in the field that stands squarely and fairly for recognized principles?

Republicans have no reason to criticize the ticket nominated by their party convention. They can support it with enthusiasm.

At its head is a man whose three years in the common council have given him ample experience; who has devoted time and energy to city affairs and who received from his aldermanic associates at the beginning of his second term the unusual compliment of an unanimous election to the presidency of the council. His opponent is a man who has had a fair share of recognition and who had small cause for complaint when his party saw fit to select another man. His determination to rule or ruin has furnished no added reason why republicans should desert their regularly nominated ticket.

There is similar lack of reasons why democrats should endorse such action as was dictated by the managers last night. The implied declaration that the democratic party has nobody fit for the position made trouble in the convention—will make more trouble as the campaign progresses. Democrats who sought to protest last night were hooted down, but their voices will be heard between now and April 6 declaring that if a republican is to be elected he must be a republican representing a higher principle than petty vanity and personal spite.

Senator Hoar has had experience enough, so he speaks with authority when he declares that he doesn't want any share in distributing federal patronage. He has never found it necessary to become an office broker in order to hold his place, and his office is commended to every member of congress who imagines that he has to peddle offices in order to retain his place in the public service.

The greed of democrats is what has up to this time prevented the filling of the vacancies in senate committees caused by the retirement of senators, March 3. The republicans have been and are still willing to agree to a proper distribution of the vacancies, but not to the demands made by the democrats.

When a president's enemies can find nothing to criticize in his acts he must be on the right road. That is just where President McKinley now stands.

Uncle Sam bought the patent of a rapid firing gun the other day, not so much because he wanted it as because he could use it to compel the combination which controls the patents of the leading rapid firing guns to sell the governments guns at a reasonable price.

If our democratic friends were as certain as they pretend to be that the Dingley tariff bill will result in the downfall of the republican party, that measure would be put through the senate as rapidly as it has been put through the house.

The editor who is paying ex-Postmaster General Wilson, the author of the worst features in the present tariff law for writing attacks upon the Dingley tariff bill, isn't getting much for his money.

If prize fighting is brutal and demoralizing as most people believe it to be, will not an exhibition of kinetoscope pictures of a prize fight be equally brutal.

Whatever else they may be, the Spanish officials in Cuba are proving by the better treatment they are giving Americans, that they are not fools.

CHICAGO MARKETS BY WIRE.

Chicago, March 27.—[Special]—Receipts in the northwest are now larger than a year ago. The snow blockade is over and I expect good receipts right along. The wheat market has declined about two cents during the week, corn quar of a cent and pork twenty five cents per barrel. Crop reports have been bad from Missouri and parts of Illinois but the best judges say that the damage is yet unascertainable and this view is confirmed from Southern Indiana where early damage reports are now presumed to have been premature. I sum up the weeks observations by men for whom we can vouch by saying, that in Kentucky, Tennessee, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, the Virginias, Maryland and North Carolina, which raised ninety millions last year. The crop conditions are perfect and the average 5 to 10 per cent larger, while in Illinois and Wisconsin which raised forty four millions. Some damage has occurred, but which cannot be measured as yet. It is possible to see where no damage has been done. A wheat field covered with a healthy plant is all right, but a bare or uneven field may or may not be damaged beyond recovery. A good condition is ascertainable, a poor condition is not and I base my views of ultimate recovery, on the theory that weather conditions during the winter have been favorable, and that the only damage to be apprehended is from bugs in May and June; but this danger is largely reduced by abundant moisture, which is menace to the welfare of the bugs. I hope I am not stubborn; I have no interest except to be correct. I know my promises and reasonings are correct; and I have repeatedly said and have been endorsed by results, that fundamental conditions are safer to build on the fragmentary observations. Receipts for the week at all points are 45,000 more and export clearances 50,000 more than last week. The visible supply will decrease about a million. We learn that some seedling has been done in Iowa. Minnesota farmers expect to do some seedling next week on the high lands. The snow is melting slowly and without menace from floods. A gradual is better than a sudden disappearance. Nothing special to say about corn and oats. We will have liquidation of the May stuff, but the shorts are apt to be anxious as well as the longs.

Pyramid Pile Cure Cures Piles Quickly.

People go along for years suffering with piles. They try this and that and the other thing; carrying a buckeye to getting treatment from a physician. They obtain temporary relief, maybe, but they are never quite cured. A little strain in lifting, excessive fatigue, a little constipation or a little diarrhoea and the piles come back. They don't seem to amount to much, but they banish sleep and appetite. No position is comfortable. There is intense local pain and that dreadful feeling of weight in the perineum.

Maybe in the early stages some of the many salves on sale will afford temporary relief. If the case is of long standing there is only one speedy and sure remedy. It is Pyramid Pile Cure. Even in light cases it is the safest thing to use. Other applications may cure and may not. Pyramid Cure is always certain, always reliable, always brings comfort at once. Its prompt use saves months of severe suffering. In extreme cases it will save surgical operations and attendant dangers and discomforts. It is better than a knife. Will cure easier, quicker and safer. Thousands have used it. Thousands have been cured by it. The cost is trifling compared with what it does. The price is 50 cents. Most anybody would gladly pay ten dollars to be rid of piles. Buy, try and sell Pyramid Pile Cure. If you haven't it, we'll get it for you from the Pyramid Drug Co., of Albion, Mich. (sole manufacturers.)

THE BOSSES RULED WITH IRON HAND

THE UNTERRIFIED SELECTED JOHN THOROUGHGOOD.

Delegates Hustle When the Ringmasters Crack the Whip—Is the Regular Party Nominee and Was Not Endorsed—Hot Fight For Street Commissioner-Slate Was "Fixed"

Mayor.....JOHN THOROUGHGOOD
City Clerk.....THOS. D. DOWLING
Street Commissioner.....CHAS. H. CARPENTER
School Com'r at Large.....WM. J. HEMMING
Justice of the Peace.....To Be Filled
Sealer of Weights and Measures.....F. QUINN

The "boys" delivered the goods. Objections were of no avail. The ringmasters cracked the whip, and the delegates hustled into line. John Thoroughgood—republican—is the democratic candidate for mayor. He was not endorsed. He is not a "citizens' candidate." He is the plain "democratic candidate."

His nomination was a straight party nomination.

Hence he is the regular party candidate, and there are no frills attached. Democracy in Janesville has come to this.

No man in the democratic party, it would appear, is a fit man for mayor.

In this extremity the democrats have to turn to the republicans, and pick up a republican, who, for the reason, perhaps, that he has not been "urged" as much as he thought he should have been, declared himself as a "citizens' candidate," and then circulated his own petition asking himself to run!

That the democratic party—whose presidents have occupied the white house—should so cheapen itself, seems almost incredible.

But it has come to pass, and John Thoroughgood, republican, was last night smeared with a thin coat of democracy and declared to be the nominee of the city convention.

Twenty men out of the seventy-five authorized to vote at the convention, repudiated the plan by refusing to vote for Mr. Thoroughgood, and that will fairly represent the proportion of democrats who will refuse to accept a renegade republican when an out and out republican who make no excuses for his candidacy is also in the field.

Stuart B. Heddles will be next mayor of Janesville, and he will be placed in the chair by the republicans and the democrats who are democrats, and not followers of some "image erected in the name of democracy."

Convention Was Fixed.

The convention that met last night was "fixed." Peter J. Moust, the city chairman—who carried the democratic party to the Thoroughgood factory in a bag and left it on the doorstep of the ex-mayor—called the delegates to order. When he declared the meeting open for business half a dozen men made motions at once. Mr. Moust knew who to recognize however, and the others howled in vain. J. L. Mahoney, the slate chairman, was selected, and he made an excellent presiding officer. C. C. McLean was made secretary, the chair apparently knowing that Henry Hemming calculated to do when he recognized Mr. Hemming rather than several others who spoke before him.

The list of delegates, as published in the Recorder was adopted, and vacancies were filled by the delegations. Edward Connell's name was on the Second ward list, but Connell explained that "pursuant to some antipathy" he was not a delegate. No attention was paid to his claim that a man one had rubbed his name off the slate after he had been elected, and a substitute was appointed.

One Ballot Enough.

M. J. Sullivan moved that an informal ballot for mayor be taken. F. C. Burpee and C. C. Russell were named to act as tellers. Richard Valentine nominated William Smith, and the nomination struck the floor so hard that it jarred the plaster. A ballot was then taken and resulted:

John Thoroughgood.....55
William Smith.....11
C. C. Russell.....2
J. B. McLean.....2
John Winslow.....2
J. L. Mahoney.....2
F. S. Baines.....1

Cheers greeted the announcement, and B. H. Pulker, who seemed to be on excellent terms with the chairman, and able to catch his eye at any time, moved that the ballot be declared formal, and the nomination made unanimous. This was done.

Richard Valentine then arose. "This convention," he said, "is a little different from any democratic convention that I ever attended, so I move that the delegates be empowered to cast the ballot for either of the republican candidates, now in the field for mayor."

J. B. McLean was incensed. He jumped up and declared that the democrats had a mind of their own and that they did not need any advice as to what they should do. This fact, moreover, became apparent before the convention adjourned, and proved that the Fifth ward statesman knew what he was talking about when he insinuated that the delegates were "wise" on what was expected of them.

M. J. Sullivan moved that a committee be sent out to find Mr. Thoroughgood, but it was announced that the nominee was not in the city. This was evidently the statement that was intended to "go," for the statement of another delegate that he had met Mr. Thoroughgood on the street at five o'clock was not noticed.

Fight For Street Commissioner.

C. C. Russell nominated C. H. Carpenter for street commissioner in a neat speech, and several others nominated other candidates. Then the hair pulling began. Two ballots were declared irregular as there were more tickets in the hat than there were voters in the room.

"It looks," said Chairman Mahoney, "as if some of the gentlemen here were in the habit of attending the republican caucuses." This sally went home. Nine-tenths of the men in the room were guilty looks, and seemed to be about to make the joking remark of the chairman a personal matter.

When two ballots for Ephraim Boots were found doubled together in the hat the tellers looked annoyed, but the suggestion was made that it "was simply a pair of Boots, and therefore perfectly proper," so they counted one vote, and threw the other away. The result of the fight for the nomination for street commissioner, by rounds, was as follows:

C. H. Carpenter.....17 23 25 28 25 00 41
E. Boots.....25 26 32 28 27 33 00 03
Herman Buggs.....19 24 20 19 20 17
J. Howard.....6 3
Wm. Meggott.....5 3
Geo. Ains.....2 1
H. Garbutt.....1 1
H. H. McKinney.....1 3

McLean Attacks Tellers.

When the crooked ballots were counted and the chair announced them as no ballots, J. B. McLean wanted to know what was the matter with the tellers, and why they did not attend to their business. He referred to the arduous labor performed by them very eloquently, and aimed a slap at the younger democracy by characterizing their work as "boys' play." He demanded new tellers, and Messrs. Burpee and Russell "stuck," but the chair told Mr. McLean that he was out of order, and McLean sat down. Much wrangling ensued, but no blood was shed, and the balloting finally continued until a choice was made.

But two ballots were needed to select a candidate for city clerk, the disturbance, by rounds, being as follows:

Thomas Dowling.....32 47
H. Garbutt.....31 26
H. H. McKinney.....12 2

Mr. Dowling was declared the nominee, and on motion the nomination of a justice of the peace was left in the hands of the city committee.

R. Valentine, U. C. McLean, Dr. J. B. Whiting and J. L. Mahoney declined in person or by agent, so William Hemming was nominated for school commissioner at large by acclamation. Ferdinand Quinn was nominated for sealer of weights and measures without dissent.

B. H. Pulker, who had made the opening motion, then made the closing one—that the chair appoint a city committee. The chair said he "would hand the names to the secretary"—for the reason, perhaps, that the make up of the committee had not been discussed at the previous meetings of the inner circle—and the delegates filed out of the room.

Many Curses Heard.

Curses loud and deep rent the air as the crowd spread out over the street in front of the engine house, and one of the most prominent party workers, after commending Richard Valentine's stand on the question, offered to bet ten dollars "that not a man on the ticket would be elected," but none of the others seemed to want to grasp the situation to that extent.

The Whitelight club was assembled on the bank corner as the delegates passed, but their mute appeals were unnoticed, and they were left "to die of thirst," as one of them expressed it.

The neglect of this detail indicates perhaps more plainly than anything else, the lack of harmony in the ranks.

It was a great convention—"man-agerially" speaking—but politically—ugh!

MISS ETHEL WILLS BURNED TO DEATH

FORMER JANESVILLE WOMAN'S TRAGIC DEMISE.

She Had Been Suffering With a Mental Trouble, and It Is Thought That She Set Fire to Her Clothes While Demanded—Lived At Huron, S. Dakota.

Miss Ethel Wills, a former resident of this city and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wills was burned to death yesterday afternoon at her home in Huron, S. D.

A telegram was received by Mr. and Mrs. Wills last night. The unfortunate young lady was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wills and was 22 years of age. For some months past her mind has been unbalanced and her parents have constantly been in fear that something might happen to her. She was a music teacher, and it is said that she paid too strict attention to her work and that overwork affected her mind. Yesterday afternoon she was left alone in the house and neighbors soon discovered smoke issuing from the kitchen. On forcing an entrance they found the interior all afire. The body of the unfortunate young lady was lying on the kitchen floor. Life was extinct. It is supposed that during one of her spells she set fire to her clothing.

Miss Wills was born in this city and prior to the removal of her parents to Huron, she attended the public schools here. Last summer she visited in this city and her actions at that time pointed so strongly to the fact that she was mentally unbalanced that it was deemed best to send her home. The afflicted parents have the sympathy of many Janesville friends.

No definite arrangements for burial have been made, but it is supposed that the remains will be brought to this city and interred at Emerald Grove.

FARMERS PLANNING FOR A GOOD ROAD

THEY MAY LAY MILES OF MACADAM.

Plan Is To Rebuild the Highway From Johnstown Center to Janesville City—Expense Would Not Be More Than a Year's Repair Bill They Say.

A macademized road the entire distance from this city to Johnstown Center may be a thing of the near future. The question is today being agitated by a large number of Rock county's most prominent farmers. The idea originated among the farmers themselves. They are beginning to realize what the good roads mean to them. The almost impassable condition of the roads during the past two weeks has brought about a great revival in interest. Bad roads have resulted a general general dull business with merchants while the farmer has been an equal loser in more ways than one.

The plan that is now being talked of contemplates the use of crushed stone for the road bed.

At Mount Zion, it is claimed, they have a stone quarry that contains a certain quality of time stone that would be hard to equal for this purpose. Farmers owning property on the proposed route could donate their services during a certain time in the summer when it was most convenient, and before many weeks rolled past the project could be carried out. For crushing the stone and for the use of a steam roller, funds could be raised and it is claimed, by those who have looked into the matter, that the entire cost would not be much in excess of the amount that it is now annually laid out on these roads.

A local merchant says that the matter has been frequently talked in his store by farmers from Johnstown Center who say that some definite action will be taken in the matter this summer.

A VIOLET IN HER HAIR.

A violet in her lovely hair,
A rose upon her bosom fair!
But, oh, her eyes
A lowlier violet disclose!
And her ripe lips the sweetest rose
That's 'neath the skies.

A lute beneath her graceful hand
Breathes music forth at her command.
But still her tongue
Far richer music calls to birth
Than all the minstrel power on earth
Can give to song.

And thus she moves in tender light
The purest ray, where all is bright,
Serene and sweet,
And sheds a graceful influence round
That hallows e'en the very ground
Beneath her feet.

—New York Ledger.

FIRED AT RANDOM.

Hardesty had been called down to the town of his birth by the summons of the real estate agent into whose hands he had entrusted the care of the property he had received from his father's estate. Estate is a big and general word and many people use it in a grandiloquent manner in speaking of a corner lot in a marshy suburb. In Hardesty's case it meant a little better than that, but it was no vast Anneke Jans tract by any means.

He had not been in that little town for 17 years—indeed since the days of his school attendance. He recalled how on one summer afternoon he had vaulted out of a window just ahead of the schoolmaster's hickory, how when wallowed for it at home he had left the house in anger, and how that night he had boarded a freight train bound Cincinnatiward—and had never gone back. Often he had thought of the old place, and when the days of his middle age came they found him wondering and wondering and dreaming at odd times about Milt Woodard's cooper shop and the other things—but he did not go back.

After the death of his father and when he had come into the old family residence he seemed to wonder and dream all the more. Once he had met the father of Doras Alderman at a quadrennial session of the Methodist conference and had talked to him of Doras, who had been a schoolmate, but in general he had had little communication other than that witnessed in the letters which passed between himself and the real estate agent. Now, on this evening, 17 years afterward, he trundled into town in a sleeper and thought smilingly of the day when he had rolled out on a box car. The agent had written him to the effect that somebody had offered a famous sum for the old Hardesty homestead, purposing to cut it up into an addition to the city. The agent, a boyhood friend, had suggested that Hardesty come down from Chicago to give personal attention to the matter, for by so doing he believed that a few thousand dollars more could be realized.

Dreaming of the old days, Hardesty left the train at the depot. It was a stone and brick depot, he noticed, and not the little frame structure in which he and Tom Coyne had loafed in the summer of old days. He remembered Tom Coyne very readily, and thought with especial amusement and interest upon the episode of the bumblebees. Before reaching the town he had decided that the very first thing he would do would be to go into the little old wooden station and examine the walls to see if the initials "D. H." for David Hardesty, were still there where he had cut them on the wainscoting, to the fury of Johnny Clark, the station agent. He had counted a great deal on the pleasure of this investigation, and it annoyed him somewhat to step off the car and into a spick and trig depot of masonry construction.

After the affront of this evidence of progress and prosperity had somewhat worn away he started to walk down the road to the residence of the agent, his old friend. He knew the location of the house, for as a boy he had been able to draw a map of the town, showing every residence, outhouse, chicken coop and fence. Somehow, however, he found the quest a bit difficult. New streets appeared, inviting him to walk down into what had been green fields, but which were now "additions" and "places," all built up with trimly painted frame houses.

He found the object of his search at last and was admitted. His friend, the agent, who had only partially expected him, did not know him at first, and indeed Hardesty would have passed the other a thousand times before recognizing in his brown mustache and glossy collar any semblance to the patched and freckled boy who had helped him to rob Frank Stone's historic melon patch. The agent introduced his wife and said Hardesty would remember her, but Hardesty would have done nothing of the sort, except for the fact that he had learned from correspondence that his friend had married little Eda Stone, daughter of the sovereign of the melon patch.

They talked, after dinner, about business and about the improvement in the city—it had been a village in the old days—and about the advisability of Hardesty selling his property.

"Really," said Hardesty, "I don't know that I care to sell. You see, the old homestead has been in the family for generations, and it seems almost a sacrilege to dispose of it. Why, I was born in that house. I used to look over the fence there at the gooseberry bushes in Gallagher's place and wonder—by the way, are the Gallaghers living there yet?"

"Oh, no! They moved away long ago, and a fine, big, stone public school has been built there."

"A stone public school? Why, Henry, when we were boys, a one room frame house did us pretty well. Do you remember how we used to revile the boys who attended the academy and call them 'academy rats,' because the academy had two rooms, and consequently two stoves?"

"Yes, and they called us 'district rats,' and we fought about it," said Henry. "By the way, Dr. Culver lived on the other side, didn't he? Well, there is a whisky cure institute there now—a big one—the third in the state."

The next morning Hardesty started out to view the property before finally deciding not to sell. He declared that it was hardly worth while, as he had no pressing need for money, and it was always pleasant to think of the old times, and the old place, and the old home.

"When we get to that corner," he said, proud to show that he still remembered things, "we will turn and cross the common, passing by old Mrs. Marvin's cottage and swinging to the right by Hen Gettle's hothouse."

"I'm afraid we can't," said the agent and friend. "You mean to cross the common, don't you, as we used to in making the short cut for the river when we went fishing? Well," as Hardesty nodded in a delighted affirmative, "we can't do it, for it is all built up now. Mrs. Marvin's cottage site is taken up by the residence of the mayor, and Hen Gettle's home is now his home no longer, but is a three story hotel. You see the town has been progressing in 17 years."

Hardesty looked at his friend in wonder and not altogether in pleasure.

"On the way," he said, "I should like to pass the old one room school where Lo Ellenwood used to teach, and out of the window of which I leaped 17 years ago. It is down this way, isn't it?"

"It has been moved back in the lot, and a big grocery has been built on the front—the playground, you know, where we used to play foot and a half and sailors' Bombay. The old school has been converted into a stable for the horses of the man who runs the grocery. We abandoned it as a school ten years ago and erected a pressed brick structure down in the next block. We have been progressing materially."

"You don't mean to tell me the old school is used as a stable?" cried Hardesty. "And that playground gone too? Why, the happiest moments of my life and yours were passed there listening to half witted Billy Mendenall imitating bird songs and skinning the cat on the horizontal bar, which we bought by a popular subscription of old iron and rags."

"Yes, it was in the way of improvement."

As they talked they walked. Hardesty hardly knew himself for the changes in the old town—the dear old town back to which he had looked so fondly. Off there in Chicago he had been in the habit of passing opinion on men and saying: "Ah, you poor, hustling, deluded mortals, you are entirely different from Squire Lo Stone and Ott Templar and the other quiet, tranquil souls in that other town where my old home is. I am glad I have that dear place. It will be like an anchorage to me in this stormy sea." And now, and now—why, just think of it! The old school a stable! "Henry," he finally remarked, "there is just one thing I seriously want to and must see. There used to be a big cottonwood tree over on the river bank—you remember it—where I carved my name one day—my name and that of a girl. I'm married now, but, do you know, I'd like to see that old tree and see if the initials are there yet. The girl was Ida Jordan. I suppose, of course, she has 12 children and"—

"She's dead, Dave—died two years after you left. And the tree has been cut down to give way to a lumber yard and"—

Hardesty interrupted him. "Say," he cried, "you sell that stuff of mine for what you can get. I don't want to see it again. Your town is too prosperous for me. There's only one thing more I want to know. I want to lick the man who cut down that tree. Who is he? Where can he be found?"

"It was on my land, and I cut it down," said his friend, the agent.—Chicago Record.

Our Dear English Cousins.

Somebody has been informing the London Times that "American children are trained in their higher schools to exercise the ritual of 'saluting the flag' in military style, and that their martial ardor is by this and other means so blown into flame that when these young persons leave their schools they form themselves into societies and take a vow to avenge with their blood any insult to their country's flag." This somewhat vivid description has excited the horror of another reader of the Thunderer, and he leaps to a conclusion in the following amusing and highly characteristic style: "Apparently your correspondent uses the expression 'young person' in the technical sense of a female creature somewhere between a girl and a woman. Does he really desire that young females of this kind should in England form themselves into societies to avenge with their blood any insult to the union jack or elsewhere? Seriously, I think that the American example in this, as in some other things, is to be avoided as degenerate rather than followed. Surely our ancestors managed to conquer at Cressy and Poitiers and Agincourt, at Blenheim and Trafalgar and Waterloo, without all this absurd civilian ritual on the part of schoolgirls, this religious worship, or rather idolatry, of the personified country under the symbol of a flag, and these silly vows by young Hannibals in petticoats. If the people of the United States is really beginning to worship itself as an abstract unity, it is a sure sign that it is beginning to abandon the only true worship, and to retrograde to mere civic paganism."

The only daughter of the Right Rev. William Crosswell Doane of Albany is a married woman living in the same town with her episcopal father. Mrs. Gardner and her large family of small children crossed the Atlantic on a steamer, where the following remark was overheard by another passenger. Her little son was "caught" in some game of play. "Why," he exclaimed, "I can't be 'it'! My grandfather is a bishop!"

BEAR OF SANTA PAULA

CARRIED BULLETS IN ITS BODY FOR TEN YEARS.

Weighed Over Five Hundred Pounds—The Old Hunter Who Got the First Shot at Brain Died Long Ago.

ONE day in the fall of 1885, says a Santa Paula correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle, John Maxon of the Ojai valley, in Ventura county, discovered a bear prowling around his pig corral. The fact of the bear's presence was not surprising, as it was no uncommon thing to see bears any day in that part of the country ten years ago, so that it would have been cause for more comment if a person did not see a bear while journeying to or from the nearest town than it would have been to meet one every mile or so. Maxon was therefore not surprised when he saw that morning the particular bear but he was surprised at the animal's unusual size. Mr. Maxon was 68 years old at that time and had been a bear hunter more than fifty years. He had killed bears by the score and of all sizes and shades. While panthers still existed in Ventura county he was a famous slayer of those fierce beasts of prey. He is credited with having killed the last panther ever seen in the country, although there is one at present lurking in the woods near the oil wells at Santa Paula. But among all the great wild denizens of the forest that John Maxon had laid low with his rifle this bear that cast a longing eye on the inmates of the pigsty that autumn morning had no equal for size or formidable appearance. The old backwoodsman went back in the house and got his rifle and quickly lodged two bullets in the bear, which sent the animal howling and bleeding into the woods. The survival of the bear after receiving two bullets in his body was the greatest surprise that Maxon ever had in his whole career in the woods. He summoned his son and the two followed the bear. But it entered a jungle, from which the hunters could not dislodge it, and they gave up the chase, the old man believing that the bear would die from his wounds. As the big animal was not seen again Maxon's opinion that the two bullets he had lodged in the bear had done for him was generally accepted as correct.

Time passed and the big bear ceased to be a subject for discussion in the Ojai valley. A year ago Uncle John Maxon, as he was known all over Ventura county, died. A few weeks ago Jack Maxon, the old hunter's eldest son, while on his way to Santa Paula, saw a bear cross the road in front of him, not far from his house, and its great size at once recalled the big bear of 1885. Jack believed it was the bear that his father had shot ten years before. It was bigger, he declared, than the one Sam Rawlins killed out in the Santa Barbara mountains in October, 1892, and that was the largest ever bagged in the county, being seven feet long and weighing 500 pounds. That bear was stuffed and presented to the state university museum, where it is now. A hunting party was organized and long and persistent efforts were made to capture the monster, but he kept in retirement and his retreat could not be found. On a morning after a recent shower one of Jack Maxon's neighbors saw a track in the mud, the size of which left no doubt that it had been made by the fugitive Maxon bear. The footprints measured seven inches across the "ball" of the track. In a short time there were many hunters on the track, but the chase lasted for days and it was only a few days ago that it ended. The bear was surrounded in a swamp by nine lusty hunters and the dogs were sent in to run him out. He killed a couple of dogs before he made a break for the open. He crushed through the laurels and appeared within a rod of a ranchman named Henry Rogers, who is one of the sure shots of southern California. Rogers sent a ball crashing through the big animal's brain and it fell dead in its tracks. In dressing the bear two battered bullets encrusted with flesh were found in his shoulder. Jack Maxon says he will make an affidavit that they were the bullets his father fired into the bear in 1885, and no one doubts that such is the fact. The monster bear was divided and each of the nine hunters got fifty pounds of meat. The skin, according to one account, measured eight feet and five inches from nose to tail, and another account says the measurement was seven feet eleven inches. The bear was particularly fat, but, skin and all, he weighed over 500 pounds.

A County's Criminal Record.
Mingo county, W. Va., has a remarkable record. It is a young county, and but few terms of court have been held. There are now quite 1,800 votes in the county, but there are over 1,000 criminal cases to be tried, most of them on indictments returned by the last two grand juries.

Sickles' Retort to Ingersoll.
After one of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's characteristic lectures in New York he met Gen. Daniel G. Sickles, who had been in the audience, and asked him:
"What did you think of my lecture, general?"
"Do you see that cripple across the street?" asked Sickles.
"Yes."
"What would you think of me if I should go over now and kick the crutches from under him?"
"I'd feel like kicking you," answered Ingersoll.

LIFE LINES OF THE FOOT.

What They Reveal to the Character Student.

There is man in Philadelphia who claims that it is much easier to read one's character and past and future from the maps on the soles of one's foot than it is from the palms of the hand, says the Philadelphia Press. He calls it "pedalogy" and if the scoffer who passes his door and looks in at the maps on his walls calls it "Trilbyism," that does not matter. There are scoffers at everything, be it true or false.

The pedalogist, while refusing to tell the names of the owners of the feet in most cases, showed a number of diagrams the other day and explained how he read the fortunes of the soles.

"Here," he said, "is a public character and well-known actress. Here is her story. Look at it. It's worth studying, for she is one of the most beautiful women on the American stage and is remarkable in other ways. Her foot is so beautifully arched that little of her sole touched the paper when she placed her foot upon it. The intellectual and artistic lines are clearly defined on her foot; and one need but hear her speak for a few moments to realize that her artistic and mental capabilities are of a high order. The lines of intuition and imagination are remarkably long. The cross between the line of love and the head line indicates that in a love affair she would be governed largely by reason. She has strong affections, according to the long heart line."

A contrast to the actresses' foot was that of a factory girl from Kensington. This was a foot common to people of little education. There was scarcely any instep to the foot. The lines of imagination, mental capacities and intuition were very short and the artistic line was entirely lacking. The heart and love lines were well defined and long. The lines also indicated firmness and great ambition, with a decided fondness for pleasure. So the pedalogist explained.

Still another foot was that of a society girl. Here again was the high arch. It showed among other things that she did not have to stand upon her feet as did the poor factory girl. The lines told of her having less heart and less ambition than the factory girl, too. There were selfishness and vanity in the impression. It seemed well that silk stockings and dainty shoes usually kept it from the sight of those who would read its owner's character in the sole of that foot.

There was the foot of the preacher and the policeman and the lawyer and each seemed to tell a story in keeping with its owner's vocation and habits. Last of all came the print of the man about town. There was no arch there. It had come down "flat-footed." It looked as if it were used in walking up and a fashionable street and standing about the club. It had good nature and self-satisfaction, some generosity and some brains in it, but little ambition.

SPINAL DISEASE

And Painful Affections of Nearly all the Organs Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

From the Journal, Detroit, Mich.

"Disease of the spinal cord and nervous prostration, was what the doctors called it at first," Mrs. Rosa Tapley, of No. 721 Harrison Street, Ionia, Mich., said yesterday to a reporter, "but it was not long before every organ and member of my body was affected. There was a continuous beating at the pit of my stomach, my head ached on until I thought I should grow insane. I felt as if I was smothering and my legs would become so weak that I had to drop when I felt the spells coming on. As for sleep, that was out of the question, except little cat naps, for in addition to the feelings I have attempted to describe, I had neuralgia, and for six months I kept getting worse and worse, and at last was confined to my bed in October, 1894."

"I have nearly always thought it was la grippe, that I had," Mrs. Tapley continued, "though the doctor never would say so, but whatever it was it kept getting worse and worse, especially my head and nerves, and I thought I should die, but I dragged on a wretched existence until about one year ago, when, while I was reading the Detroit Journal and Saturday Evening Post, I saw a long account of a similar case to my own being cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I made up my mind to try these pills, and so procured a supply and began taking them according to directions."

"My experience has been most happy. My heart's action is normal, my back and spine gave me very little trouble, all neuralgic and rheumatic pains have left me. I have no headache, whatever, and after the hell that I suffered my life by comparison is now like heaven."

"I cannot say too much in praise of Pink Pills. You may use all the adulatory language of which you are capable," Mrs. Tapley said to the reporter, "and I will endorse it. I have never tired of recommending the pills to my neighbors, and my sister who is a school teacher, and had a serious time with her nerves and suffered from loss of memory, at my suggestion is taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and is being rapidly cured."

"Read over what you have written," Mrs. Tapley requested, and after listening attentively to what she had dictated, said: "I can sign that statement with the greatest pleasure," and when the last remark was entered the lady signed her name to the reporter's notes thus:

(Signed) MRS. ROSA TAPLEY, 721 Harrison Street, Ionia, Mich.
